Introduction

This index provides access to subjects, people, places and organizations covered in Nation's Cities Weekly. Each mention of a city is indexed (except where the city name is only used to identify a person), but people, organizations and states are only indexed when they are a substantive part of the article, rather than named in a single paragraph.

When a place is listed in an article and not further discussed, the term (listed) is included in the entry.

Organizations are entered directly under their names, e.g.

Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations

First National Bank of Boston

University of Southern California

except that governmental units with certain non-distinctive words at the beginning of their names (i.e. Department, Office, Bureau) are indexed under the meaningful part of the name instead:

Labor, U.S. Dept. of

Census, U.S. Bureau of the

A government agency (including Congress) is generally not indexed unless the article discusses its organization, staffing, etc. Discussion of programs in a specific area are indexed under the subject only. To do otherwise would be to create long lists of entries under the major agencies such as HUD, DOT, etc. Actions of a specific individual connected with an agency are usually indexed under that person's name, with a reference to his/her name from the name of the agency.

Testimony given by NLC is indexed under NATIONAL LEAGUE OF CITIES--TESTIMONY as well as the subject area and the name of the person testifying.

State leagues are indexed under the general term STATE LEAGUES--(STATE) rather than under the specific form of their name.

Legislation on a specific topic is indexed under the topic, e.g. a discussion of the Emergency Medical Services Systems Act of 1973 is under HEALTH--EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES. Legislation covering many topics, or discussion of legislation in general, is under LEGISLATION.

Reports, books and other publications discussed are indexed under the name of their author as well as the subject.

These types of articles are included in the index:

articles, including articles about a report or other publication which discuss its content or the issues it raises

special sections, as a whole individual articles within the special section

reading column

news briefs

letters to the editor

Omitted from the index are:

urban almanac

urban action box score

munimart

articles which merely announce the availability of a publication articles announcing positions open, meetings or courses to be held,

including Congress of Cities

A typical entry is as follows:

ENERGY-GAS

methane from landfill as fuel source

Apr 9, 13

This means that there is an article on the broad subject of energy, specifically gas energy, which discusses methane from landfill as a source of fuel; the article is found in the April 9 issue beginning on page 13.

Under each subject heading in the index the descriptive phrases for the specific articles are arranged chronologically by date of publication.

This index is produced semi-annually, and was begun with the January-June, 1979 volume.

The indexing has been done by members of NLC's Office of Communications and Municipal Reference Service, and edited by Olivia Kredel. We would very much appreciate any comments or suggestions from users of this index.
